

7th HICUM Workshop 2007

The High Current Model (HICUM) has emerged as one of the standard compact models for bipolar transistors fabricated in various cutting-edge technologies. The 7th HICUM Workshop is meant for technical communication focussed on the needs and interests of the bipolar transistor modeling and design community. Presentations covering the modeling of various bipolar transistor phenomena, new modeling strategies, model development, testing and performance comparison in view of the HICUM model and high-speed circuit performance are solicited.
